Our New Zealand business originated in 1910 as New Zealand Towel Supply & Laundry (NZTS) under the ownership of George & Elizabeth Plowman, with services initially distributed by horse drawn cart before migrating to a fleet of trucks in 1918. For almost 90 years, the NZTS brand was synonymous with laundry, towel, and uniform supply services in New Zealand.

In 1998, the Plowman family sold the business to the Steiner family, owners of the global AlSCO Uniforms group, ensuring what is currently more than 135 years of continuous private ownership.

With our long local and international history, stable ownership, and vast experience in the provision of laundry, hygiene, and related services, we are able to take a strategic view on providing the best service to our customers and building long term relationships, rather than a simple focus on short term outcomes. Many of our key customers have used us for their services for decades - in some cases, more than 40 years.
